Brian Schiff is the Esmond Nissim Professor of Psychology, Director of the George and Irina Schaeffer Center for the Study of Genocide, Human Rights, and Conflict Prevention at The American University of Paris. Schiff completed his Ph.D. at The University of Chicago, The Committee on Human Development, in 1997.

Schiff is author of A New Narrative for Psychology (Oxford University Press, 2017) and co-edited Life and Narrative: The Risks and Responsibilities of Storying Experience (Oxford University Press, 2017). He is also editor of a special issue of New Directions for Child and Adolescent Development, Rereading Personal Narrative and Life Course (Jossey-Bass, 2014), and Situating Qualitative Methods in Psychological Science (Routledge, 2018). He is the 2016 recipient of the Theodore Sarbin Award from the American Psychological Association's Division 24 (Society for Theoretical and Philosophical Psychology).

Schiff's current research examines the social and cultural meanings scaffolding acts of mass violence. He is also writing on the concept of collective memory and the social impact of atrocity education.
