Dear colleagues,

The special issue of Journal of Mental Health, Training Education and Practice call for papers surrounding indigenous knowledge systems in mental health in order to explore how knowledge systems contribute to our understanding of mental health conditions in different societies and countries and how this influences approaches to support, treatment and service delivery.

Submissions are welcome to this special issue. Topics covered include (but are not limited to):

- Traditional health practitioners and mental health
- Traditional healing and mental health
- Mental health issues as experienced by black and minority ethnic groups
- Relationships between traditional health practices and mainstream mental health services

See link for more details: <https://www.emeraldgrouppublishing.com/journal/jmhtep/indigenous-knowledge-systems-and-mental-health>

All best wishes,
Dung
