

The European Philosophical Society for the Study of Emotions

3d Annual Conference

June, 13-15, 2016, University of Athens

We are delighted to announce the Third Annual Conference of the European Philosophical Society for the Study of Emotions (EPSSE). The Society is a non-profit organization dedicated to fostering the philosophical study of emotions by providing a forum for exchanging views. The Society will make a special effort to involve young philosophers in its activities. Although the title of the Society refers to European philosophers, the Society is open to people from other countries, as well as to those who are not philosophers by profession, but have an interest in interacting academically with philosophers.

The Annual Conference covers a wide variety of conceptual, methodological, ethical, and aesthetic issues in the analysis of emotion, as well as topics in the epistemology and ontology of emotional experience. In light of recent events in Greece and the European Continent, topics in social and political theory will be of particular interest for the forthcoming conference.

We invite submissions of abstracts (up to 500 words) for papers, symposia, and posters on any aspect of the philosophical research into emotions. Please prepare your abstract for anonymous review.

Submissions can be made at: <https://easychair.org/conferences/?conf=epsse2016>

Latest date to submit abstracts to Easychair (500 words): 24 January 2016 - NEW DEADLINE (EXTENDED)

Notification of reviewers' decision: 21 February 2016

Registration deadline: 31 May 2016

Conference: June, 13-15, 2016

For more information about the Society please visit our website: <http://navotnaor.wix.com/epsse>

With our greetings for the holiday season,

The organizing committee:

Aaron Ben-Ze'ev (University of Haifa), Anthony Hatzimoysis (University of Athens, local organizer), Angelika Krebs (University of Basel), Jan Slaby (Free University of Berlin), Lauren Ware (University of Edinburgh)