

Intercultural Exercise Resources

Can you ask the task force if anybody has any intercultural exercises good for students studying intercultural communication? I am teaching an online course and am looking for some not long exercises that could prepare students for recognizing 'culture[.

with thanks, kind regards Michelle

Michelle Brenner

Holistic Conflict Resolution Consultant

Reg. Family Dispute Resolving Practitioner

Phone Sydney Australia (02) 9389 2005

Email: brennermichelle@hotmail.com

Michelle,

There is a book of exercises in cross-cultural psychology: Susan Goldstein, Cross-cultural explorations: Activities in culture and psychology. Some of them have worked better than others in my courses.

Because you are teaching the course online, I assume you cannot do group exercises. But there is an expensive but useful game, Bafá, bafá. I also published an article about a group exercise on unequal resources that works well. Gibbons, J. L. (2010). The power of resources: An exercise in inequality for teaching psychology of women. Psychology of Women Quarterly, 34, 127 – 130.

Hope this is useful. Copying to Louise in case she wants to share it with the listserve.

Best,

Judith

Judith L. Gibbons, Ph.D.
Professor Emerita
Saint Louis University